The archaeology concentration within the anthropology major provides training in both of these endeavors. Building on an excellent overview of general anthropology, it provides in-depth exposure to all subfields of archaeology and an opportunity for more advanced study in old and new world prehistory.

The program combines the strength of Case’s Department of Anthropology with the staff and resources of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History’s Department of Archaeology, providing students a unique opportunity to study archaeology and participate in original archaeological research and museum curation.

Why Emphasize in Archaeology?

Anthropological archaeology reconstructs the customs and daily life of people who lived in the past by excavating and analyzing the material remains of the sites of human occupation.

At the same time, archaeology seeks to understand the evolution of culture and society by determining how and why changes in human society occurred over the past five million years that our species has inhabited the earth.

What is Archaeology?

Archaeology concentration within the anthropology major provides training in both of these endeavors. Building on an excellent overview of general anthropology, it provides in-depth exposure to all subfields of archaeology and an opportunity for more advanced study in old and new world prehistory.
