Introduction to International Relations
POSC 272

Professor Pete W. Moore
Office phone: 368-5265
e-mail: pete.moore@case.edu
Office hours: Mather House 219

Course Objectives:

This course aims to introduce major bodies of theory concerning cooperation and conflict in the international system. In a setting characterized by political heterogeneity and economic inequality, how can the actions of states be understood and compared? POSC 272 seeks to answer this question by exploring theory and applying it to historical and contemporary examples. The first half of the course focuses on issues related to war and peace. The second half covers international economic issues, and issues of the future.

Required texts:

Minimal subscription to The New York Times. (delivery and/or electronic, 3rd week in January to 3rd week of April)

Other readings are on KSL’s electronic reserve

Detailed Requirements:

1. Reviews: Though this is an introductory course, it is highly dependent upon student participation and keeping up with the readings. To facilitate participation, a review of a selected weekly reading will be due on each Tuesday. You must do 10 reviews throughout the semester and no papers past Tuesday of that week are accepted. The analysis should focus on one reading, be concise, be one page, and in your own words lay out the phenomenon discussed, the concepts deployed, and the arguments developed. These papers are not individually graded rather total completion of these papers along with class participation is 10 percent of the final grade.

2. Short Exams: Week 4 (2/7) and Week 8 (3/8) there will be an in class short answer exam.

3. Debate papers: Weeks 10 (Globalization), 12 (Intervention), and 14 (Nuclear proliferation) we will discuss debates surrounding current international issues. I will assign students to present papers on each of these debates. Your paper and presentation will due the Thursday of that week. Sources for the debate paper include the readings but also must draw on material from the New York Times.

Class Policies to Note:

Cell phones must be turned off during class time. If a phone rings once inadvertently, please turn it off immediately. Should a student answer a cell phone for any reason during class, he or she will be asked to leave and not to return to that class. If personal circumstances require that a student be available to receive calls during class time, he or she should explain the circumstances to the professor and not attend class.

Any rescheduling and/or extensions of exams and/or papers that are not completed at the designed time must be discussed before the deadline to receive a rescheduling/extension. The professor designates late papers as Fs unless discussed prior to deadline. Papers will not be accepted as a computer file through email.

Plagiarism whether from digital or printed sources will not be tolerated. Failure to give credit in footnotes for other’s ideas, failure to use quotation marks when quoting directly from another source, and/or failure to acknowledge another author’s conclusions will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of university regulations.

Absence from class will be excused for up to 3 meetings, after which points will be deducted.

Week 1

1/17  Introduction

1/19  IP, Introduction chapter, pp. 1-7
*Jack Synder, “One World, Rival Theories”

Week 2  Mapping the field I: The major theories of international relations come in four varieties: Realism, Liberalism, Constructivism (or critical theory), and Dependency (to be discussed week 7). This week we will continue the discussion of realism and move to forms of liberalism. Why do states behave the way they do?

1/24-26  *Thomas Hobbes, short selection from Leviathan
Hans Morgenthau, “Six Principles of Political Realism” pp. 16-23

Week 3  Mapping the field II: A major difference among the approaches is the question of cooperation and the extent of anarchy, its sources, and limits.
