COURSE OUTLINE AND REQUIREMENTS

POSC109, The American Political System, is an introduction to the US political system, with a focus on national governing institutions, constitutional constraints, and the impacts of mass participation and electoral democracy. The course focuses on the political and economic development and national construction of the United States. In so doing, this course considers fundamental national values such as liberty, equality, racism, and democracy, in terms of the impact of these values upon the construction of the nation and of their negotiation in practice across two centuries.

The course is divided into three major sections. The first focuses on civil society and the state, the mechanisms of national government elaborated in the Constitution, and their relationship to the economic system. In the second section of the course, we examine the relationship between state and citizen, and the ways in which political power achieves expression in a democratic state. We will consider public opinion, the role of the media, the formation of interest groups and political parties, and the means by which citizens organize to have an influence on governing officials. Because 2008 is a presidential election year, we will investigate these relationships with reference to the presidential campaigns and the presidential election process. The third section of the course is devoted to an investigation of the three major branches of national government: the Congress, the Presidency, and the federal court system. The course concludes with a consideration of governance and democracy in contemporary U.S. politics.

Evaluation of student performance in this course will be based on the following criteria. First, students will complete two in-class examinations, each of which accounts for 20 percent of the final grade. Second, students will complete a final examination, which accounts for 25 percent of the final course grade. Third, students will write two short position papers, each of which accounts for 15 percent of the final course grade. Details of the short paper assignment are available in a separate course handout.

Finally, each student is expected to attend class and to be prepared for each class meeting by having read, in advance, the materials assigned for that day. Students should be prepared to discuss the material in detail in class every day. All students are expected to participate and to present themselves in class in a professional manner. Professionalism refers to adherence to standards of behavior and performance expected from political scientists. This includes, but is not limited to, courteous behavior in class; attention to other speakers; engagement with the work at hand; and, of course, adherence to university standards of academic integrity. Students are expected, and obliged, to comport themselves, in class, in a professional manner. Informed class participation and professionalism are requirements of the course, and account for the remaining 5 percent of the final course grade.

Due dates for examinations and assignments are indicated in the reading schedule, below.
Books required for this course are listed below and are available for purchase in the University Bookstore:

Robert Dahl, How Democratic Is the American Constitution?
Thomas E. Patterson, Out of Order

Additional readings are available through electronic journals or JSTOR, through the Kelvin Smith Library website, or on the course webpage at www.case.edu/artsci/posc/kb109.htm. Each student should print a hardcopy of every additional assigned reading for his or her own research purposes. Please note that this is a requirement of the course.

Students are encouraged to read the New York Times daily. Copies of the Times are available on campus and in the University Bookstore.

Standards of professionalism and academic integrity are integral components of this course. Students are reminded that they are obliged to understand, to uphold, and to comply with the Academic Integrity Policy of the University. A copy of the Code may be found online at http://www.case.edu/provost/ugstudies/acintegrity.htm

Students who do not understand this Policy after having read it should make an appointment to see me to discuss it; indeed, I welcome this discussion and encourage students to see me in advance of any assignment about which they have doubts or questions. It is a course requirement that students read the University’s Academic Integrity Policy.
