Why were some leaders, but not others, overthrown in the Arab Spring? Why is Britain more democratic than Russia? Why did Hutus kill an estimated half a million Tutsis in Rwanda in 1994? Puzzles such as these are the focus of comparative politics. Comparative politics is the study of processes and institutions within countries, whereas international relations is the study of interactions among countries. Prompted by real-world puzzles, comparativists investigate broader, more theoretical questions: How stable are different forms of government? How does one country become more democratic than another? Why do relations between some ethnic groups turn violent? This course introduces students to some of the central puzzles and theories of comparative politics in order to help them better understand world events.

We will explore the following political phenomena: types of governance, revolutionary movements and revolutions, democratization, participation and activism, poverty and its alleviation, ethnic conflict and peace, and state failure. For each of the topics we will typically spend one week examining explanations of the phenomenon and a second week evaluating the explanations against real-world examples. Are the existing explanations satisfactory, and, if not, what alternative explanations can we suggest? The examples are drawn from most regions of the world, including the Middle East, Africa, Asia, Europe, the former Soviet Union, North America, and South America.

Course Materials

To evaluate the explanations, we will read scholarly works as well as journalistic accounts, travelogues, and policy pieces. Political novels are suggested for further reading. The course also incorporates film clips, slides, and policy exercises.

Books and Articles: Five works are available for purchase at the bookstore: The Magic Lantern, Power in Movement, Behind the Beautiful Forevers, We Wish to Inform You That Tomorrow We Will Be Killed With Our Families, and When Things Fell Apart. The books are also on reserve at Kelvin Smith Library. Required materials for week one will be distributed in class; required materials for subsequent weeks will be available on the course Blackboard site under Course Documents, unless otherwise noted. Paper or electronic copies of readings should be brought to class the days they are assigned.

News: Students are strongly encouraged to follow world events. These sources offer some of the best foreign coverage:

- The New York Times can be accessed for free on a Case computer or through VPN at http://library.case.edu/ksl/researchtools/newspapers/. Select Factiva. For a subscription, see the bottom of the NYT home page.
- The Economist is available in the periodicals section on the first floor of Kelvin Smith Library. For a subscription, see https://www.economistsubscriptions.com/ecom26/global/index.php
- National Public Radio (WCPN 90.3 FM) broadcasts news updates at the top of the hour and news analyses throughout the day. See http://www.wcpn.org for the schedule and podcasts.
- Monkey Cage offers brief news analysis on timely topics. See https://www.washingtonpost.com/news/monkey-cage/
Course Requirements

Participation: The class is discussion-based, and students are strongly encouraged to take notes on the readings in order to be prepared to integrate and critique the materials and to pose questions for discussion. Readings should be completed by the first day of the week they are assigned, and paper or electronic copies of readings should be brought to class the days they are assigned. Because participation is critical to understanding the material, students are expected to attend all classes. Except under extraordinary circumstances, absenteeism will negatively affect students’ final grades.

Explanations Week Papers and Examples Week Papers: In addition to reading course materials and participating in class, students will write an explanations week paper for three of the seven “Explanations” weeks and an examples week paper for three of the seven “Examples” weeks. The purpose of these papers is to help students understand, critique, and integrate the readings and prepare to pose questions for discussion in class. In these papers, students should develop an argument related to an analytical question, such as what role do masses and elites play in democratization, for an explanations week paper, or how did international factors influence the transformation of Eastern Europe in 1989, for an examples week paper. The strongest papers typically introduce the argument in the first paragraph and then use evidence from the readings throughout the remainder of the paper to defend the argument. They also usually incorporate ideas from each reading for that week and perhaps draw on ideas from previous readings as well. The strongest examples week papers typically draw on the theories from the week before.

Students may choose which weeks to write explanations week papers and examples week papers; however, they may not write an explanations week paper and an examples week paper on the same topic. For example, if a student writes an explanations weeks paper on democratization, he or she cannot write an examples week paper on democratization. Explanations week papers should be between one and a half to two pages double-spaced; examples week papers should be between two and two and a half pages double-spaced. Papers must be submitted at the beginning of the first class of the week the analyzed materials are assigned. Evaluation of the papers will take into account the degree of independent thinking, use of assigned materials, and quality of writing.

Final Assignment: Students will complete a final, take-home assignment, for which they can use notes and readings but cannot confer with others. The assignment will include a series of essay questions, requiring integration of the seven political phenomena. Assignments will be distributed at the end of class Thursday, April 27 and must be turned in Tuesday, May 2 at 10:00 am in Mather House 218. Students should plan their schedules accordingly and organize and review their notes in advance.

All written work should be carefully structured and grammatically correct. Informal citations—phrases like “as Goodwin argues”—are acceptable. To avoid plagiarism, students should review “Plagiarism: What It is and How to Recognize and Avoid It,” distributed in class. Cases of plagiarism and other forms of academic dishonesty will be investigated by university judicial bodies.

Class participation and attendance will constitute 15 percent of the course grade, explanations and examples weeks papers for 55 percent, and the final assignment for 30 percent. Students will lose a half a grade on any assignment for each day it is late.
