WHAT IS IT?
Like other cities around the country, Cleveland is hosting a March for Science to celebrate and show support for the great science underway in our community. The event begins in Public Square in downtown Cleveland, with family-friendly science activities at 9 a.m. and speakers at 10 a.m. The march takes place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and follows a two-mile route, starting and ending at Public Square. There is no cost and all are welcome. For more details, visit sciencemarchcle.com.

WHY A MARCH?
Cleveland Science Rocks! Science informs and enriches our lives. It's vital to our economy and our future. We aim to highlight and encourage the research underway at our region's world-class universities, medical centers and science-based industries, and the science education provided by our schools and cultural institutions. The march is a politics-free, non-partisan event where we can come together to take a stand for science.
