"Structuralism in Simone de Beauvoir’s Second Sex"
Judith Grant, Ohio University

WED, NOVEMBER 15, 2017, 4:00PM
GUILFORD PARLOR (Reception 3:30)

In The Second Sex (1949), a foundational text of feminism, Simone de Beauvoir writes, “One is not born, but rather becomes, a woman,” thus announcing the rise of gender as a culturally-based category. Professor Grant, author of Fundamental Feminism, presents The Second Sex in the context of the structuralist movement in philosophy and political theory.

Sponsored by the Program in Women’s and Gender Studies, the Departments of Modern Languages and Literatures, Philosophy, History, Political Science, and the Baker-Nord Center for the Humanities (Info. marie.lathers@case.edu)