International Studies Program: Course Prospectus

Purpose of Prospectus: For the student and project advisor to establish the project requirements prior to the granting of a course permit. Each should retain copies of the prospectus before submitting it.

Prospectus Due: Four days before the end of drop/add to the International Studies Director's mailbox in Mather House 110

Next Steps: Once the advisor's section appears on SIS, the student requests a permit electronically for that section and then enrolls once the permit is granted.

Select One:

____ INTL 396: Independent Study—Students work individually with a faculty project advisor to study a topic within the scope of International Studies.

____ INTL 398: Senior Research Project—Students work individually with a faculty project advisor to research and write a major paper on an international topic. The project offers students the opportunity to analyze a topic related to their area and topical foci, using methods, concepts, and/or theories from their foundational and other courses with the goal of demonstrating their understanding of the complexity and dynamics of the human world. Upon request to the International Studies director, who seeks approval from the director of SAGES, this course can meet the requirements of a SAGES capstone.
